LAFOLLETTE IS CHOICE OF LABOR

Gompers to Throw Support To Wisconsinite

EUROPEAN PARALLEL

Move Seen to Establish Political Government

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., August 2.—Samuel Gompers, war-scarred veteran of labor's half century fight for supremacy, weakened by encroaching ill health and with a nurse and physician in constant attendance, today began the biggest battle of his career.

It is a battle which may result in the first nationally conceived political movement to establish a labor government in the United States, paralleling the new labor government in Europe which has arisen to power in the revolt of the farmer and the workers against old-line political affiliations.

Proposal Before Council

Gompers, himself taciturn and secretive, is pictured by his closest friends as believing now that the best chance of success lies in action by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, swinging vigorously behind the presidential candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette.

The council, beginning its second day session this morning, had before it the unanimous recommendation of its political campaign committee giving a qualified endorsement of the La Follette candidacy. First formal discussion by the council is scheduled for this afternoon.

Sentiment Favorable

The way is clear for the adoption of the report. Sentiment in the council is overwhelmingly in favor of getting behind the La Follette campaign. While the members will make no predictions for publication as to what the final action will be, they say that the federation will be more active in the campaign than ever before.

And so Gompers, 71 years old, has come to take the fight, perhaps his last presidential fight. His health is so weakened that it is impossible to say when the final action of the council on the report will be taken.

Non-Partisan Policy

The council intends to thrust out fully the possible effects of its unprecedented step before it is taken, according to Matthew Woll, chief lieutenant of Gompers. It wishes to preserve carefully its former policy of non-partisanship. It does not desire to pledge itself to all progressive principles or give the impression that it will not support many regular republican and democratic candidates for the senate and congress.

Qualified endorsement of the La Follette-Wheeler presidential ticket, however, is no departure from the old policy of the party. Gompers believes indications are that the decision of the committee will not be made public before Monday and perhaps late next week.

NO ARREST YET IN THEATRE FIRE

No New Developments in Airdome Probe

No arrests had been made today in connection with the burning of the Airdome theatre last Tuesday night and a photo officers here investigated on the theory that the fire was incendiary.

Detective X. Q. Brizandine, who was assigned the case by Police Chief Corvinton said he had been called off of the case to work on other matters but would devote his time to the Airdome affair in an effort to determine the origin of the fire.

CRUSHED; DIES

Waxahachie Fireman Killed In Collision

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Aug. 2.—Tom Maxwell, former city fireman, was crushed to death here last night when a fire truck on which he was riding collided with another machine.

DAVIS RESIGNS AS FEDERAL ATTORNEY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Resignation of Assistant Attorney General Earl D. Davis of Detroit was announced today by Attorney General Stone. Davis will reenter law practice in Detroit. No successor to Davis has been selected and it is likely the position will not be filled for the present, Stone said.

EX-JUSTICE DEAD

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 2.—George Shifren, former associate justice of the United States supreme court, died in a hospital here today after a lingering illness. He was 92 years old.

Claim Loeb Plotted Leopold's Death

Nebraska, Wisconsin Governors Refuse To Observe Defense Day

Guard Unit Not to Participate in Test Mobilization Called for September 12, Executives Declare

NADISON, Wis., August 2.—Wisconsin's national guard will not take part in National Defense Day September 12, it was announced here today.

In an order issued by Governor John J. Blaine, Adjutant General Ralph Emmelt today declared "the governor feels that a test of mobilization is inadvisable and that the Wisconsin national guard will take part only on the call of the president of the United States in a national emergency."

Blaine's statement contends the defense test inadvisable because it would "stimulate a national military movement" and it would be more worthwhile "for America to hold a demonstration that would lead to universal peace." He also objected to the plan on the ground it would create an unwanted impression in foreign countries.

Governor Blaine further attacked the mobilization scheme on the ground of inconvenience advanced by Governor Charles W. Bryan, Nebraska, democratic vice presidential candidate, in his statement.

The Wisconsin chief executive is a close friend and political ally of Senator Robert M. La Follette.

BRYAN GOT TO RAISE NATIONAL ISSUE

LINCOLN, Neb., August 2.—Governor Charles W. Bryan, democratic vice presidential nominee, declared today any intention to raise a national issue in refusing to go all the way in supporting National Defense Day, September 12.

In a message to John W. Davis, head of the democratic ticket, the Nebraska governor asserted that the national test day "rather in question than in fact" was not in his official capacity as governor of Nebraska and his position in the nation represents the overwhelming opinion of the people whom I represent as governor.

Governor Bryan said he had no intention at any time of speaking as a candidate on the national ticket "and I sincerely hope that my duties here as governor have not embarrassed you or caused you to feel that it is necessary for you to take public notice of questions arising in connection with my official duties as chief executive of the state."

Denies Defense Day Proposal Is 'War Scare'

ANNISTON, Ala., August 2.—Tribute to the response of the south to National Defense Day on September 12 was paid here today in a formal statement from headquarters of Camp McClellan, the largest training camp in the country.

The statement declared that "to place our first defense in the light of a political maneuver would be nothing short of national disaster" and continues:

"To the everlasting credit of the people of the south it can truthfully be said that none of this criticism has come from them. Recognizing the inherent common sense of holding a test mobilization they have individually and through their representatives put themselves on record as endorsing the plan."

The statement declared that no city would buy a fire engine without having a test run and that no one would say that the fire department wished a fire because of this test.

"Yet it is just as consistent and logical to attack the war department on the grounds that they want war or are trying to start a war."

BAKER HAS NARROW ESCAPE IN WRECK

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 2.—Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, narrowly escaped serious injury today in a street car collision in which five persons were injured seriously and scores cut and bruised.

Baker was standing in the motor room of a two-car train as it sped around a curve, crashing into another car.

Baker was slightly bruised. Fire persons were taken to hospitals.

20 ESCAPE

Narrowly Escape in Denton Hotel Fire

DENTON, Texas, Aug. 2.—Twenty persons narrowly escaped with their lives when fire destroyed the City Hotel, a two-story frame structure, here shortly before midnight last night.

Origin of the fire, which was discovered by passersby, is unknown. No estimate of the loss was made.

ALIENIST TELLS A WEIRD STORY

Darrow Sees Victory to Save Youths in Sight

HINT SURPRISE COUP

Life Sentence Sought for Franks Slayers

CRIMINAL COURT BOOM, CHICAGO, August 2.—Playing his cards with the sureness of a master, Clarence Darrow, chief defense attorney in the Leopold-Loeb murder case, is awaiting an opportunity to make a surprise play and rest his case. Darrow feels that his efforts have been so effective thus far that he may not be forced to play out the entire hand as planned.

Expect Surprise Move

A new surprise move is expected—a move that will bring the defense case to an abrupt termination.

But Darrow, lean observer and crafty player, feels elated with his work thus far and it was made known he feels he does not have to extend much more force to win the victory—the victory being to have Nathan Leopold, Jr. and Richard Loeb sentenced to life in prison.

Planned Leopold's Death

"Dickie Loeb seriously planned the death of his intimate chum 'Babe' Leopold," Dr. William White, Washington alienist declared at the judicial hearing.

"Loeb wanted to do away with Leopold because he felt that 'Babe' had no 'woman' for criminalistic activities," the doctor said.

"Both boys had in mind possibility of killing the other member of the combination," Dr. White testified.

"In Babe's mind, the thought was no quite so strong. But in Dickie's mind, the thought was much stronger and he interviewed another boy for the purpose of making him his partner in the crime, the event he feared Leopold too dangerous to continue the partnership."

"Slave" and "King"

Babe played the "slave part" most of the time, but pictured himself as the strong man. He pictured himself (Turn to Page 7, Column 1)

POLICE THANKED BY MERCHANTS

Folows Arrest of Forgery Suspect

A letter of thanks to the police department for so quickly arresting and running down a man held here who confessed he two weeks ago victimized seven Port Arthur merchants with false cashier checks in sums of $20 each, was mailed this morning from the Retail Merchants' association office at the instance of the directors who held a meeting Friday.

The directors thanked Police Chief Covington, Captain Fox and Detectives Brizandine and Wynn particularly for their work in the case.

A man was arrested in Houston Friday and was believed to be the one who gave the bad checks to Port Arthur merchants W. T. Hooker of the Corn Drug store, one of his seven business houses, cashing one of the checks, was called by long distance and notified by the Houston police department a man fitting the description sent from here was held there. Hooker told the Houston police he was convinced the man held there was the swindler who worked here.

The man held by the police was arrested at Lake Charles Friday, where he is said to have been caught in the act of giving one of the same kind of checks on a Galveston bank, which he distributed here. He gave his name as A. B. Frost, police said. The checks were all made out to Clarence D. Cunningham.

Mrs. Aikens To Be Buried in Beaumont

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Belle Aikens, who died Friday afternoon at her home in Pearl Garden, will be held at the J. E. Grammer chapel at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. Knights of Malta as well as all friends of the family are invited to attend. It was announced. The body will be shipped from Beaumont Monday morning to Livingston for burial. Mrs. Aikens was the widow of the late H. K. Aikens, who died in January.

REFUND OF INCOME TAX IS UNDER WAY

James W. Bass, collector of internal revenue for the first district of Texas, including Port Arthur, states that his office has begun to issue and mail out checks for the refund of the 25 per cent reduction of federal income taxes paid in full for the year 1923, provided by the Act of 1924.

This bill was signed by the president and became law on June 2nd. The first checks, covering refunds were mailed out July 29th.

It was necessary to list nearly 30,000 accounts, showing the names and addresses, serial number of returns, total amount of tax paid and the one-fourth due to be refunded. Then these lists had to be forwarded to the department for approval and returned for payment, when a like number of checks will be issued.

BOY STEPS ON STARTER, CRASHES INTO A TREE

PEARSE, Texas, Aug. 2.—While playing in a car in front of the Woodward home, J. E. Brown, 5, stepped on the starter and the car shot across the lawn at full speed, crashing into a large tree. Jane escaped uninjured but Katherine Woodward, also 5, who was the "passenger," sustained a severe cut on the head and a sprained ankle.

Mother Love Wins

The glittering opportunity for a screen career—sought daily by thousands of pilgrims to Hollywood—has been flatly rejected by Mrs. Frances Fay Jacobs (above), 18-year-old mother. Movie life is too much of a gamble, she told the magazine who offered her a job, and she wants to think of securing a good education for her three and four-year-old boys (below, Clifford (left) and Leonard (right)). Her husband has left her and she is working as an usher in a San Francisco theatre.

"A prominent financier, who recently returned from abroad where he has been in close touch with conference for providing the necessary machinery to make the Dawes plan operative said the loan probably will come within the next three or four weeks," the agency said.

Operation Restores Sanity To Crazy, Desperate Criminal

All Charges Dismissed When Knife Cures Brain Storm In Brain of California Desperado

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 2.—Antone Wroblewski is a free man today, and owes his liberty to a surgeon's scalpel. Charged with burglary, Wroblewski was considered one of the most dangerous criminals ever captured here. He was taken after a running fight in 1923, escaped, was recaptured in Portland, Ore., soon afterward, and in 1924 committed to the state hospital at Napa as insane.

Three surgeons found he was suffering from a mental condition which they believed could be removed by an operation. Six months ago Wroblewski went under the knife.

Yesterday an assistant district attorney told the court that Wroblewski was sane as a result of a surgeon's work. The charges were dismissed, and the court ordered a ticket purchased to take Wroblewski back to his home in Detroit.

Operation Comes Too Late for Belgian Lad On Tanker Sunoco

STRICKEN at sea on board the Belgian tanker Sunoco, medical help given John DeKaye when his ship reached Port Arthur came too late.

DeKaye, a Belgian, was rushed to Mary Gates hospital Thursday afternoon and an operation was immediately performed on him to remove a ruptured appendix, added to which other complications had appeared.

But at 3 o'clock the end came, for DeKaye's case had been rather hopeless from the beginning. On board the Sunoco was the stricken man's father, Louis DeKaye, also a member of the crew. The younger DeKaye was only 22 years old.

The body is being held at Grammer's, and funeral services will be held at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. Burial will probably be at Calvary cemetery.

FORD REPORTED TO BE EYEING U. S. SENATE

DETROIT, August 2.—Henry Ford may enter the race for the republican nomination for United States senate from Michigan, says a report received from Washington in a semi-official way by a high state official. It is stated in a special dispatch from Lansing to the Detroit Free Press.

The correspondent assigns as a reason why the automobile manufacturer may run for the nomination, is that President Calvin Coolidge and national leaders of the republican party are dissatisfied with the present lineup in the Michigan senatorial race.

On 1918 Henry Ford was the candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator, and was defeated by Truman H. Newberry.

GOV. AL SMITH IS INVITED TO VICTORIA

VICTORIA, Texas, Aug. 2.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York has been formally invited to open the Victoria District Fair and Continental Exposition on October 29. He replied that there is at least a possibility of his coming, but that it is impossible for him to make definite plans so far in advance.

HAIL SWEEPS FARM LAND NEAR ABILENE

ABILENE, Kan., Aug. 2.—A blizzard sweeping $50,000 was done by a terrific hailstorm which swept this section Friday night.

Sev lights, windows and automobile tops were wrecked by the hailstones, some of which were two inches in diameter. Crops were damaged over hundreds of acres.

MOSS OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS

J. L. Moss, 1125 Shreveport avenue, was operated on for appendicitis at Mary Gates hospital this morning. Moss is getting along nicely, hospital reports say.

DAWES PROGRAM GOAL IS NEARER

German Delegates Invited To Pow-Wow

SUCCESS, SAYS LOGAN

Adjustment of Economic Unrest in Sight

Special to The News.

LONDON, August 2.—The allied conference here today moved rapidly toward its goal of putting the Dawes program into execution, thus providing machinery for a general European settlement of the reparations problem. Prospects for a steady of world economic unrest were bright today.

The plenary session served on an invitation to Germany to send delegates to the conference and a formal invitation was telegraphed to Berlin late in the afternoon by the German ambassador.

Outlook Bright

It was understood that the allied message is a simple request to the government to send representatives to the conference.

The German Delegates, Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann, are expected to leave Berlin late tonight.

The invitation was written by Prime Minister MacDonald as president of the conference.

"The conference is the biggest success of any allied meeting since the treaty of Versailles was signed," Colonel James A. Logan of the United States told newspapermen after today's plenary session had adjourned.

Half of German Loan To Be Raised In America

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Bankers' intimates identified with the proposed $200,000,000 loan to Germany provided in their Dawes program, state that one-half the amount will be offered in the United States, the Dawes Jones Financial News Agency said today.

A prominent financier, who recently returned from abroad where he has been in close touch with conference for providing the necessary machinery to make the Dawes plan operative said the loan probably will come within the next three or four weeks," the agency said.

13 Unlucky Number For Negroes in Raid

Thirteen negroes playing "coon can" on Friday night naturally had to have some head lock and the same bad fortune was in the form of two of the biggest policemen on the force. Officers Russell and Stanley, coming in and breaking up the game of chance.

The place was a box car on the tracks behind the ice company plant and the raid was about 11:30. The officers got to the station with 11 of the African chance takers and two were lost in the shuffle. Ten of the eleven paid guilty before Judge Shivers in court and one court this morning and were fined the old regulation penalty of "ten and costs."

One plead not guilty stating he was bothered with insomnia and dropped in on the game to keep himself company and was not participating. His trial was set down for Monday.

OLIVES NOW GROW NEAR BROWNSVILLE

HARLINGEN, Aug. 2.—Another tropical fruit was added to the list of valley products this week when olives began ripening on the Siles plantation northeast of Brownsville.

The olives in commercial count same old this fall. Last spring they bloomed profusely and the fruit set fairly heavy. This year the yield will be good for the first year crop, according to experts.

As far as any records indicate, this is the first olive grove to bear fruit in the valley. However, old settlers of Brownsville tell of a famous old tree which grew to a great size and bore quantities of fruit in a secluded garden behind the walls of an old Mexican home in the city. The tree was destroyed by the fire or cut down.

BOY STEALING RIDE KILLED, TWO INJURED

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 2.—Roy Ruler, 9, was killed and his companion, John Dawson, Jr., and W. T. Green, a teamster, were injured when a Kansas City Southern passenger train crashed into a wagon on a grade crossing here. The boys were "hooking a ride."

ONE KILLED IN RIOT IN MEXICAN CAPITAL

MEXICO CITY, August 2.—Political tension was high here today following a riot between civilian and policemen and firemen in which one civilian was killed and five wounded.

The fighting took place near the national palace when policemen and firemen attempted to disperse a procession demonstrating against high taxes.

3 SHIPS IN, 3 SET SAIL

Two Bring in Crude From Tampico

Arriving yesterday afternoon and completing her cargo today the Texas Company tanker Roanoke sailed today at noon for Norfolk. The French steamer Michigan, which has been loading out at the Texas Company docks will also sail this afternoon, going to Port Neches to complete her cargo of lubricating oil and wood barrels before leaving for foreign ports.

The W. L. Stead arrived in port today and will load out a cargo of refined oil from the Gulf Company docks. In addition to the three Gulf Company tankers which arrived in port yesterday afternoon to take on cargo, the Gulfstar is expected to arrive today from Tampico, making a total of six vessels heading out at the Gulf company's wharves.

The Rochester, one of the Pure Oil Company's vessels, which arrived at Smith's Bluff to take on a cargo of oil, will sail to Sabine today to finish loading before sailing for Philadelphia.

The Belgian tanker Sunoco, which is loading out at the Gulf company docks, was expected to sail for foreign ports today, but marine officials declared this morning that it will not be possible to complete her cargo in time for sailing today. She will probably sail tomorrow or Monday.

The tanker Royal Arrow, which has just completed a trip to Chinese ports is expected to reach port today and go to Beaumont to load out with India paraffin for foreign delivery.

TEXAS NOT TO AGREE TO GRAIN RATE RAISE

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 2.—Texas will not acquiesce in the raising of state freight rates on grain to Texas ports to overcome alleged discrimination against shippers of Oklahoma and other states, according to the state railroad commission.

The commission has ordered O. D. Gindall, chief rate clerk, to go to Washington this week to represent the commission before the interstate commerce commission.

There is approximately 13 cents difference in the rates from Amarillo territory and the Oklahoma territory to Texas ports. Texas will suggest the lowering of the interstate rates rather than increasing the Texas rates, it was declared.

REV. RODGERS FAMILY BACK FROM LAPORTE

Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Rodgers and daughter, Miss Lois, have returned after a delightful vacation visit in Laporte, and other Texas points.

Rev. Rodgers will occupy his pulpit at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Stillwell and Lake Shore drive, at 7:30 this morning and evening services tomorrow.

HUBBY LOCKS HIS WIFE IN CLOSET

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 2.—If wifey gets rough—that is what one man tried. Two officers answering a frantic rush call were directed to a certain house by an excited neighbor.

Muffled sobs came from behind a locked door. No one was in sight. The officers broke down the door and found that hubby had disciplined wifey by locking her in a dark closet. But she wouldn't file charges against him when she was released.

Officers cannot live in water can'taining less than 37 parts of salt to every thousand of water.

Trail Blazed by Modern Covered Wagon

EN ROUTE TRANS-CONTINENT

NENT, Aug. 2.—Another covered wagon is blazing a new trail across the country.

Instead of being a prairie schooner of the Roarin' Forties, it is a motor bus of the busy Fifties of Broadway, where America's automobile row begins its stretch from coast to coast.

In the wake of this machine may come a new method of transcontinental travel in which you will be able to go to the nearest cross-roads hop into a bus, and continue onward in comfort until you reach San Francisco or New York.

For Dave Pasquet, veteran autoist, is bent on showing the nation that it can be done. He is driving the bus that is making the first trip. With him are two passengers. But on subsequent trips he expects to have a car full.

The car is crissed up with the latest conveniences. There is lounge room, and a smoking compartment—“Just like in a Pullman,” say the passengers.

And the trip may be made cheaply. For the whole bus, according to L. R. Anderson, of the company that built it, sells for only $5000.

No attempt will be made for speed on this first trip, just comfort and a demonstration of the practicability of the idea.

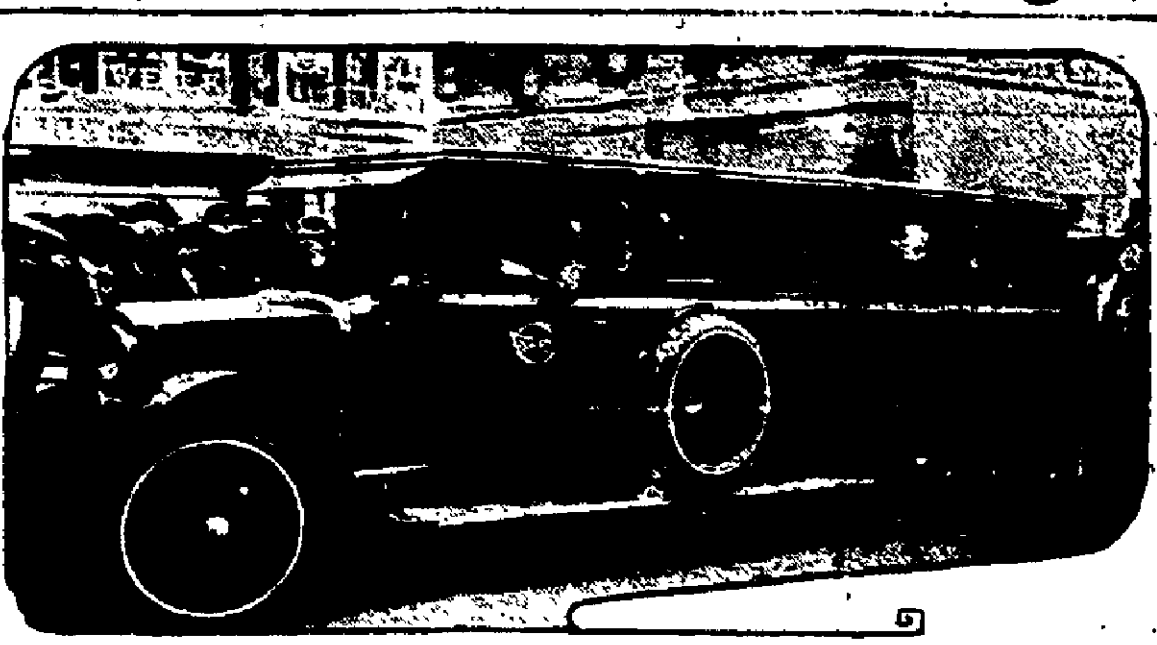

The full route will cover: New York, Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, South Bend, Chicago, Minneapolis, then after the northern route through North Dakota, Montana, on to Portland and south to San Francisco.

Then if the passengers want more of a ride they can continue on the same way back.

The permanent establishment of such transportation, conjectured automobile experts are divided among themselves on the possibilities of such development.

Some believe that motor transportation should be made supplementary to railroad transportation, linking up those towns which are off the main lines. Others believe that the motor bus or truck may supersede the rail lines.

Whatever the result, this trip marks a new era in transportation—if only as an experiment.

AUTO DRIVER FREED BY COURT

Girl Unwilling to Testify to Drunkenness

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 2.—Tommy Wharton, wealthy Dallas youth, will not face trial on charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, Justice Campbell Overstreet decided today.

Wharton was charged following a smashup on the Dallas-Galveston road near Hot Wells at Dawn on May 17. Clifford Redlander, son of a wealthy Dallas druggist was seriously injured in the crash and lay in a hospital here for weeks with a rib punched through one lung.

Ebel Laik, former wife of Dr. Redlander, Dallas dentist, and Miss Annie D. Mims, both beauties entered for the bathing girls revue at Galveston, were also badly hurt. Wharton escaped unscathed.

Edition Mims of Houston, sister of Annie D., filed the charge against Wharton. Both girls later filed suit for $30,000 damages.

The damage suits have not been dismissed. Justice Overstreet, advised by the Mims' girls attorneys that one of the injured girls is out of the state and the other unwilling to testify, dismissed the criminal charge. The case had previously been reset twice on account of illness of Wharton.

A COMPANY DINNER MOVIE LESSON

This is the last of the six "movie lessons" which tell you how to prepare a delicious company dinner all by yourself. If you've clipped and saved all of them in a scrap book, all you need to do is to clip out this lesson which shows you how to make a cocoa cake, and you'll have the directions for the next complete menu.

You don't have to be an experienced cook to make this cake. Just prop up the directions in front of you, follow them exactly, and there you are!

1. Blend $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter with $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups sugar until the mixture is light and foamy. Stir in 5 tablespoonfuls cocoa. Separate the yolks and whites of three eggs. Beat yolks and add them to sugar and butter. Beat all thoroughly.
2. Sift $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour with 2 teaspoonfuls baking powder. Add to butter mixture alternately with $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk. Beat, then fold in the beaten whites of the two eggs.
3. Bake cake in a fairly hot oven until straw thrust in comes out clean. (From 35-60 minutes.) When it is done it will be brown and will have shrunk from the edges of the pan.
4. Make icing by boiling 1 cup sugar and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water until syrup spins a thread. Have 1 egg white beaten stiff. Pour syrup on egg slowly and continue beating until of the right consistency to spread.

IN SNOOPYQUOP LAND WHERE NOTHING SEEMS QUEER

This peculiar species of Snoopy is a common sight nowadays, as he wends his weary way around the missing links, rustling meaningless nothings while he plays the Ancient and Horrible pastime—Golfing. Instead of his eye, he keeps his nose on the ball. His nose knows, too, which way the little pill will roll and his score card shows that it won't be far. The tank feet enable him to cross the yawning chasms and gaping gulfs which form a prominent part of the battle of Bunker Hill. He is not a timid Snoopy, yet none but the brave deserve the fairway and he simply can't seem to get out of the rough.

Barrie is reaching into the pocket of his golf bag for his golf hanky, with which to dust off the T, and blow his driver, I mean his nose. The T is a Snoopyquop invention, and is much better than the coffee used by many golfers to keep awake when they play. Golfquop's wife is a widow and could easily find T-grounds for divorce.

The Snoopyquop in the background watches Barrie to see that he doesn't lose his head in a sand trap.

A FAMOUS, DARING ANIMAL BANDIT

The mention of famous bandits, ungallant though they are, never fails to thrill a reader. But rivals of Jesse James and other desperadoes of history are some master thieves of the animal world, wolves who have the natural reputations for their thievery and daring shiftness.

"Old Three Toes," of southwestern Texas, was a murderer of the first order. He had to his credit terrible losses in sheep and stock and his name was a terror for herds of miles. "Old Ring Neck," of Kansas, and the famous Wyoming Wolf, were others known to trappers' history.

Old Blue is Latest
The latest, and a baffling fellow he is, is Old Blue, the leader of a wolf pack in Prairie County, Arkansas. His lair is in a cypress swamp northeast of Little Rock. He is the king of lupine outlaws. For strength, boldness, and uncanny shrewdness he cannot be matched. It seems that he leads a charmed life, for he has cunningly withstood guns, poison, traps and wolfhounds that have been used to seek his life vainly.

Day by day he has pursued his murderous work in a strikingly bold manner. A farmer who is the nearest neighbor of Old Blue has suffered greatly at the wolf's hands. He recounts that once in broad daylight he saw the animal jump into a corral where some goats were herded, snatch a goat and drag it right over the wall and disappear.

The task of getting this bandit is

THERE'S A BOBBED HAIR STYLE TO SUIT EVERY GIRL

"Mother, may I bob my hair?" isn't so much the question any more, but it's the question, how shall I have my hair bobbed? There are just as many ways of wearing bobbed hair as there used to be of wearing long hair, and for every girl there's a special type of bob that suits her best.

Here are some girls in the bobbed hair fashion notebook who are wearing all of the newest styles for short hair. Which style do you think you should wear?

Bettina, in the upper left-hand corner, has a slender face with a rather long neck. So she wears her heavy black hair longer than most bobs, because this makes her neck appear shorter. And then she has heavy, wide bangs across her forehead, because she knows that bangs going clear across like this make her slender face seem fuller. And to go with this bob, Bettina always wears dainty round collars.

Her little sister, Kay, is inclined to be quite chubby, so she mustn't wear a bob like Bettina's at all. She has her hair cut much shorter, so her neck will seem longer. She wears a very few short bangs in the middle of her forehead and parts her hair right down the center, curving the ends around close to her round cheeks. And this style of wearing her bob makes Kay seem not nearly so fat as she really is. She always keeps her hair smoothly brushed and glossy, because Kay shouldn't have a fly-away bob at all. Her hair is cut up a little shorter in the back than in the front.

Marion, the girl in the upper right-hand corner, is dressed up for a party. She has pretty curly hair which she parts on the side and then draws down over her forehead, because her face is a trifle too long. She has a prettily shaped head, though, so when she goes to a party it she wears a flower wreath in her hair which outlines her dainty head. This should not go clear around, but should be fastened at the side, as shown in the picture.

For an athletic girl, like Alice, whom you see wearing her favorite middie blouse in the lower left-hand corner, the bob shown is a pretty and convenient one. Alice has blonde hair, which she parts on one side the way Marion wears her hair. It is not so curly, however, as Marion's, and is a little shorter. It is fastened to her head. Then she wears a neat ribbon band with it.

Here's a Type for Party Wear

Here's a pretty style very popular for party wear which suits Bettie, in the lower right of the picture. Only a girl with a rather full face, like Barbara's, and thick, glossy hair, should try this hair-dress. Barbara's hair is brushed down so that it is very smooth and glossy top, and looks almost like her big brother's. But she lets the curls have their way at the sides of her hair, brushing them into tight little ringlets caught together with a little bunch of flowers at each side.

Florence, the girl in the little round picture, has her hair turned toward us as she bends over a book, and we get a view of her neat boyish shingle, which is, of course, the newest thing in bobs. The shingle is not for very young girls, however, but looks better on girls in their teens, or near there.

Shingles Vary Greatly

All of Florence's friends have been rushing to get their hair shingled, and Florence noticed that most of them weren't much improved by it. It wasn't the fault of the shingle, but simply that they didn't suit the particular girls. So Florence wisely decided that since she has a slender face the very short, boyish shingle was not for her. She has had hers rounded nicely around the back of the neck, cut a little low.

If Florence had small features, a rather low forehead, and ears which stood close to her head, she would wear the very boyish shingle, with the hair combed straight back off her forehead and clipped quite close in back. This would be very striking, but of course, there are few girls who can wear their hair in such a severe style.

Follow Your Type

The girl who is very dark, with oval face and regular features—in other words, the Spanish type—may wear her hair in a bob which is straight, parted in the middle and pulled back to follow the shape of her face. She should not curl her hair, as she will lose her "different" personality if she does.

For every girl there's a special style of bob. Did you study how your hair could be most becomingly bobbed, or did you just cut it off? If you did the latter, study these pictures, and next time you get a hair trim, you'll know just how you want it done.

A STORY OF A MODERN, SENSIBLE LITTLE BO-PEEP

Maisie used sometimes to think of herself as a modern sort of Little Bo Peep, because every day of the warm summer weather she spent down in the meadow watching her flock of sheep. Maisie's brothers had all grown up and gone away, so in the spring her father had told her that if she, with Sheep, her dog, would take care of the flock during vacation, she could call all the little lams her own and when they grew up and were sheared or sold, the money should all be hers.

Unlike Little Bo Peep, however, who really must have been a stupid creature to let her sheep stray, Maisie kept a watchful eye on hers. When she took a book along to read, she always stopped at the bottom of every page, no matter how exciting the story, and counted the woolly backs to see that all were there.

One murky, sultry afternoon, Maisie, with the sheep about her, was down by the brook in the center of the pasture when the shepherdess looked up and then jumped up at sight of a dark, swirling cloud that was traveling rapidly over the hills from the southwest, in a direction toward her and the animals.

"A tornado!" was her instant thought. "If it passes over our heads the sheep will become frightened! What if it should come down to earth!" For a moment she was paralyzed. Then she recalled that tornadoes, she had heard, usually travel in a straight path. Since she was in its track, she must move before it caught her. She snatched her big stick and quickly began prodding the sheep toward the northwest corner of the pasture. The tornado appeared to be a baby one, perhaps only a few hundred feet across, and she guessed it would sweep the pasture from the southwest to the northeast. On the opposite side, where she was headed, would probably be safety. She had never seen a tornado before, the only one that had come near their home having happened when she was quite small, but she had heard all about how they behaved.

Maisie gave no thought to her wide-brimmed hat that lay behind on the grass, but ran from one side of the flock to the other, goading them on, and occasionally turning to see the monster cloud in a fan-shaped streamer, drawing nearer.

In the corner end of the lot, Maisie crouched under the groaning trees with the sheep. The tornado came with a rush and a roar and just as it reached the meadow, by the very spot where the sheep had grazed, it did what tornadoes often do—dipped to earth. Maisie and the sheep were out of its path by fifty yards.

Maisie watched the gyrating whirlwind go ripping along toward the farmhouse, and she held her breath. It passed to the right, barely missing the structure. As soon as it was gone, a figure in a blue shirt hurried out of the door toward the field. Maisie ran to meet her father.

"Child, are you safe?" he cried. "Your mother and I feared for you, for as the tornado passed us, fragments of your hat fell into the yard."

"Yes," Maisie answered. "I'm all right, and here are the sheep too, wagging their tails behind them."

A JOKE ON NEWTON

People of great intelligence sometimes appear to be below the average in matters of practical nature. Two stories are told on Sir Isaac Newton, the great philosopher who has to his credit the discovery of gravitation.

One cold evening in mid-winter, so goes one tale, Sir Isaac drew his chair very close to a grate in which a fire had been kindled. As the fire became completely kindled, Newton, who was deep in thought, became intensely warm. He rang his bell for a servant, but the man did not respond. At last he appeared, but by that time Sir Isaac was almost choked.

"Remove that grate, you rascal," cried Sir Isaac, in a tone of great irritation. "If you don't remove this grate I'll be burned to death."

But the servant, who was used to his master's oddities, smiled and said, "Might I not rather draw back my master's chair?"

"Why, I never thought of that," admitted Sir Isaac.

Upon another occasion Sir Isaac was engaged in the task of building a house for some pet cats. It was noticed that in the front he cut a big hole and beside it a smaller one. When he was questioned about it, he said, "The larger door is for the big cats, and the smaller one for the kittens."

And the watcher laughed and said, "How wise of you, Sir Isaac. I had thought of it, but you wouldn't expect the big cats to get through the little door cut for the kittens, would you?"

HER PRECIOUS LAWN

One of the old houses in what had once been a beautiful residence section had been torn down and in their places had sprung up the buildings of a manufacturing district. Old Mrs. Bascom was the only one on the street who had clung onto the family homestead, with its spacious green lawn. From the windows of her old-fashioned house, set far back from the street, she looked with disapproval on the new overall factory which occupied the location next to her.

One day a group of girls from the factory came over at the noon hour and began playing baseball on the back end of Mrs. Bascom's big lawn. They played for half an hour or more, shouting and running from one tree to the next as they batted the ball. The old lady was in a fury. They were wearing out her carefully planted grass!

When they had gone back to work Mrs. Bascom stalked over to the factory, wrath in her eye, and asked for the manager. She had to wait for him in a room where the girls were bending over their machines. She didn't like it, because the air was foul. She wondered how the girls could stand to sit there sewing under the poor light. So young they were, too, most of them.

The manager opened the door and came forward. Mrs. Bascom took one last look at the girls confined to their work. "I want to extend the use of my yard to the girls who play ball," said she to the man. "They seem to be so cramped here. I know it must be good for them to get fresh air at their lunch hour!"

FEATURE OF CANADIAN TRADE IS ITS EXPORT

Viktor Stepanov, the article editor, writing in the London Spectator, demolishes many popular errors to which most of us still cling.

Many people have been indulgent that time-honored beliefs should thus be attacked and have written letters protesting against the Stepanov article.

1. In the first place Stepanov says that the North Pole is not the coldest place on earth as many people imagine.

Oceans always act as a moderating influence upon temperature and the North Pole is surrounded by the sea. There are parts of the United States and of Siberia where the cold is greater than at the North Pole.

The temperature at the Pole never falls below 80 degrees. In Montana thermometers have registered 60 degrees, and in Siberia there are places where 70 degrees and 80 are not uncommon, and one of them has experienced 95 degrees, which is 30 degrees below the temperature of the North Pole.

2. Another popular belief is that ostriches bury their heads in the sand. This superstition, Stepanov says, is thousands of years old, but exists only among races unfamiliar with ostriches.

Colonel Roosevelt told Stepanov that when in Africa he had diligently inquired of all natives he ever met whether they had ever seen ostriches bury their heads. They had never heard of such a thing and on the contrary expressed the greatest respect for this bird's astuteness.

"You see," said Colonel Roosevelt, "those natives had not the advantage of an American education."

It is reasonable to suppose that if ostriches were as stupid as reputed they would all fall prey shortly to other predatory animals.

3. Another superstition which Stepanov attacks is the habit of rubbing snow on any part affected by frost bite.

This he declares is an interesting survival in folk lore of one of the most fundamental principles of ancient logic: that "like cures like."

He tells us that the Eskimo never employs this method and when it is suggested to him he rejects it as the highest degree of absurd and dangerous.

"It is possible," says Stepanov, "to get thousands of rats to the benefit of effect of the snow treatment of frost bites, but not nearly as many as would have resulted in Columbus time, to the flatness of the earth, or in Washington time, to the efficacy of electricity."

4. The next superstition attacked is that human beings cannot live on meat alone. He himself has gone four hundred days without tasting vegetable food.

Certain Eskimo tribes subsist solely on meat and fish and eat vegetables only in the direst straits, to avoid starvation.

He denies the belief that Eskimos are especially fond of fat and that they drink oil.

"The Eskimo," he writes, "undoubtedly would be fond of fat and might even drink oil, if it were true that they were exposed to more cold than the rest of us, but the fact is that the Eskimos are actually exposed to less cold than the average American or Englishman."

6. Another common assumption which Stepanov attacks is that the language of primitive peoples are simple. On the contrary, the Eskimo language is enormously complex, with twenty-seven forms for every noun and elaborate declensions of verbs.

Furthermore the Greenlandic everyday vocabulary is many times greater than that of the average American or Englishman.

While our English dictionary contains nearly more words than the Eskimo dictionary it is because we preserve many thousands of dead words, and because science has given us highly specialized words with which only the exceptional man is familiar. The Eskimo, on the contrary, have no written language at all, so that every word contained in the Eskimo dictionary is in use today.

An outstanding feature of Canadian trade in the past fiscal year is the remarkable growth in the export trade with Germany. Dominion trade with Germany increased in the twelve months more than sixty per cent over the fiscal year of 1923 and more than two hundred per cent compared with the figures of the previous year. At present Canada is importing little while the volume of her exports is growing rapidly.

Where do the Germans get the money? They have been large buyers of Canadian wheat. They have been large buyers of American cotton. They have been large buyers of American bacon and lard. Germany isn't dead; Germany isn't dying. The Teutons are digging their way back. They are gluttonous for work. They are gluttonous for thrift. They never know when they are whipped. They are plodders. They live within their means. They are coming back just as they came back in the centuries ago.

Should the Dawes reparations plan be adopted Owen Young, an American, will be the uncrowned king of Germany. As the representative of the financiers who will loan Germany the money, this American Napoleon of finance will be more powerful than the former kaiser who is sawing wood somewhere in Holland. Of course the socialists think they are the rulers of England, socialists think they are the rulers of France, socialists think they are the rulers of Germany but the bankers of the world are the men who hold the purse strings of all the nations of Europe and the bankers of America controlling two-thirds of the gold of the world are the men who are dictating the terms of peace today on the other side of the ocean.

Of course the politicians tell the people that they, the people, are the masters. Are they? The men who think and act are the masters and not the mass of mankind who never think and seldom act unless their leaders give the command.

It has been so from the beginning. It may be so until the end of time. There are leaders and there are leasers and the leasers are the ninety and nine.

THIS YOUTH

Shouts, screams, sirens and confusion, we read, followed the crash in a fog of the steamer Boston, carrying 640 excursionists. And then above the calls of anxious men and women came the strains of the saxophone, the strum of banjos, the clash of cymbals and soon the measured tread of youthful feet in the popular dance of the hour. Two girls had brought out a portable phonograph and started it. And they danced, these many "honeymooning" couples, while the lifeboats were made ready.

There seems to be more to this generation of youth than its elders frequently give it credit for. Flippant, perhaps. Pleasure crazy, if you will. But when the great test comes, our youth is not found shirking. Beneath all the "smartness" and the froth of the day is a serious strain that comes to the surface when life takes a grave turn. After all, it is a great deal to meet the hazards of this existence with a smile, with the life and gaiety that is youth, though the fog is thick and we are about to cast off into the shadows.

The philosophy of this youth of ours may not be so shallow as many of us who cannot see beyond the bobbed and pomaded hair have thought.

RADIO OVER LIGHTING WIRES

The baffling question as to who is to pay for radio broadcasting is being solved in Staten Island, N. Y., where for the last 18 months an engineering staff has been developing the "wired radio" inventions of Major General O. Squier. Apparatus has already been perfected by which two different radio programs can be transmitted over the lighting wires from the Staten Island generating station, and within a short time equipment for transmitting three programs will be completed. Tentative plans for "Wired Radio, Inc., a North American Co. subsidiary which is doing the development work call for the eventual establishment of a nation-wide "wired radio" service. This service will consist of three continuous programs from studios in New York, Chicago, and a Pacific coast city which will be sent over trunk wires to central generating stations in all parts of the country. From the central stations these national programs (supplemented by local programs) will be transmitted to subscribers via the lighting lines. Each subscriber will be provided, at a monthly rental of $2, with a small tuning device that is plugged into any convenient lamp socket. Because a large percentage of the monthly rental receipts can be devoted to paying for talent, the expectations are that wired radio programs will be of an exceptionally high quality.

Your Money AT WORK

Brief but important lessons in finance, markets, stocks, bonds and investments.

WHAT IS MONEY?

IT IS A COMMODITY THAT SERVES AS A MEDIUM OF EXCHANGE.

IT SERVES AS A STANDARD OF VALUE.

Money is a commodity, the invention and use of which has existed since prehistoric times for convenience in exchange. The two main functions of money are: (1) to serve as a medium of exchange; (2) to serve as the standard of common denominator of value.

Anything which will fulfill these two requirements may be used for money. Due to modern conditions the field has narrowed so that money must be something which is relatively scarce the world over and something which has a high specific value.

A further limitation to money has crept into the modern world due to international trade. This limitation is the money of all civilized countries must, in some degree, correspond, in order that there may be an exchange of money so values may be correctly determined.

Mystery Woman Has Chance at Recovery

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 2.—Denver's mystery woman, Mrs. Gertrude Cooper, found in her fashionable apartment on Capital Hill early Tuesday after an attempt to commit suicide by gas poisoning, has a fighting chance for recovery, doctors attending said today.

Mrs. Cooper has been unconscious and unable to make a statement.

Mrs. Patrick Casey, Denver, identified the woman as her daughter.

Other occupants of the apartment house in which Mrs. Cooper lived say she came here from Kansas City and had recently quarreled with a man with whom she had been keeping company.

ENGLAND LAUNCHES HUGE FLOATING DOCK

LONDON, Aug. 2.—With the opening of the largest floating dock in the world by the Prince of Wales at Southampton, the port of London makes its bid to become the world's leading port for big liners.

Both Boston and Hamburg will be affected by this development. In the opinion of shipping experts here.

To date liners of the size of the Majestic and the Leviathan have been compelled to go either to Hamburg or Boston for repairs, due to the fact that there is no floating dock in this country able to accommodate them.

It is claimed England has led the world in originating and developing the floating dock but Germany and the United States always possessed the largest of them, and therefore attracted all the big repair work.

The LAND OF FORGOTTEN MEN

by Edison Marshall

Released by NEA Service, Inc. Copyright, 1923 by Little, Brown & Co.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Peter Newhall, after being told by Ivan Jahmin, Russian violinist, he had dreamed that Ivan Jahmin's secretary, Jahmin and Peter's wife, Dorothy, had urged him to go to South America. He joins Big Chris Larson in response to a distant signal at a giving Larson his sea jacket. Their launch hits rocks. Larson's body is buried as Newhall's Peter, rescued, finds injuries have completely changed his appearance.

Dorothy, who Jahmin goes to Alaska to return Peter's body. They do not recognize Peter in their head guide. A storm strands the ship at the grave. "Change name," a message from whence, Dorothy believes to be from Peter, telling him to accept Jahmin's marriage proposal. Upon Jahmin's return from a trip for supplies, he and Dorothy, Peter married by a native priest, Peter goes to give them both wishes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The girl spoke sharply in the silence. "Peter Newhall, my dead husband," she answered in evident awe.

"That word came from beyond the grave," Peter went on solemnly. He was partly acting on inspiration now, sure that he did not know, and partly in a deliberate attempt to take advantage of Ivan's Asiatic superstitions. "Peter Newhall that was your husband is dead, but his ghost has been here all the time—both of you know it." The girl's eyes flared with tears, and she nodded. "Ivan, the ghost of Peter Newhall is guarding this girl still. It will guard her clear to the end—I'm not a medium, as Joe is, yet I know that as well as I know anything. You can take my word for gospel. Worship her and thank God for her and be kind to her—and your soul will be saved. But at the first wickedness of which you are so easily capable—the ghost of Peter Newhall will bound you to your destruction."

Ivan stared like a stricken man. Peter took a long-drawn breath, then returned to Dorothy. "I want you to remember, too," he told her gently, his eyes fixed on hers. "The ghost of your husband is watching over you—believe me, because it's true! If you ever need him, he will be there to help you and guide you and guard you. Your guide that is more than guide—I will come, no matter how many miles I have to cross. All you have to do is to send for me."

To Dorothy, it was like an unearthly dream. She knew, with a sure knowledge, that this man meant exactly what he said; and she had experienced a new sense of security and peace that would never again be shaken. Already this sense was turning to joy. His trembling hand was at the flap of the tent.

He seemed to be listening. As she watched, fascinated, she saw the rapt look leave his face, and a look of common earthly interest take its place. He bent his head, straining; then turned to Ivan.

"It's the answer," he said. "She's come with the supplies." They heard dragging steps; then the crackle of dead twigs that were strewn about the camp fire. Someone with a heavy load halted just outside the flap of the tent.

Peter drew aside the flap, and the candle light streamed out into the room. It was not an Indian, as she had brought this back-load of supplies from across the Peninsula. The black-bearded stalwart man who stood without was Paul Sarichef, whom Peter Newhall had supposedly drowned in the Savannah river years before.

CHAPTER XVIII Sarichef Appears

There could not be the least doubt of Sarichef's identity. All three actors in the drama knew him from the first glance, with certain recognition not to be mistaken. His clothes were rough and worn, but physically he was unchanged since Peter had last seen him in the launch on the Savannah. That fact might be thought the thought was infinitely ironic. Here, in the flesh, stood the man of whose murder he had believed himself guilty and for which he had so dearly paid. There was one instant of bewildered groping in the dark, and then Peter knew the truth. He had simply been the victim of a cruel, relentless, criminal snare. Ivan Jahmin, looking Dorothy with his Oriental ardor, had schemed to win her away from her husband; and he had known no law but his own. That he should have neither scruples nor mercy was wholly in character; he was a strong, profound, relentless man, and he had never been one to be swayed from his purpose. He had craved Dorothy with an unholiness, his genius demanded to prey upon her, and when a drunken quarrel about the launch on the Savannah river had given him his opportunity, he had been remorseless in taking advantage of it. Sarichef had been told to disappear; Ivan had contrived the wicked lie that had been Peter's downfall. When Peter had wakened from drunken slumber he had been easy to convince that he had actually committed the crime that Ivan swore he had seen. Peter's only antagonist had not actually been slain; that Sarichef had not been slain to add plausibility to his story, or he himself—by cunning, deliberate, carefully chosen murder—wiped from his rival's path.

A flood of revengeful rage that might have been expected did not at once sweep over Peter, partly because the drama of the moment carried him above it, partly from sheer amazement at this incredible, unexpected visitation. He felt oddly cool, capable of deliberate thought. The moment was inordinately vivid, rather than dreamy; his realities still endured—the clouds that hid the stars, the camp fire glowing dull, the wide bed of straw at his feet and the caribou flesh drying behind the camp stove. The moon of the sea carried through the moment unbroken; and the wind still yelled and blustered, tapping the canvas with mad, frenzied without an instant's cessation. After one great start which seemed to be wholly internal—one single, violent impulse throughout the strong tree of his nervous system that showed not at all in his face or frame—all his powers seemed to rally, vouchsafing him not only perfect self-control, but a certain penitence, infallible quality of thought. Outwardly this was Dorothy and Ivan's drama solely; neither in look nor word did he give any sign that he recognized Sarichef. Such action might immediately reveal his own identity.

To Dorothy the sight of that startled face that she recognized instantly as that of her husband's supposed victim was like a shattering flat at her breast. Her throat froze and she could not cry out; but instead of quiescence and insensibility, a white light of superconsciousness seemed to pervade the scene; for also the whole truth became vividly, cruelly manifest, and she was acutely sensitive, as in a death by fire, of all its tragic phases. Her hands clasped, her face was deathly white, ugly and haggard from unbearable pain.

At the same time her thought moved with a cruel clarity. She knew now why Ivan had urged Peter's flight instead of encouraging him in his first intention to stay and fight the murder charge through the courts. She saw now why Ivan had directed her south, clearing the way and arranging for his concealment in the Brazilian fastnesses; he had known that Sarichef had gone north and he had wanted to guard against a possible meeting of the two men. She understood why he had been so moved and stirred, like a man who has just come safely through an unseen danger, when he had got the word that Peter had died in the North rather than the South, and why he had opposed so bitterly and personally her own venture into the North in search of her husband's body; he had feared that Sarichef would encounter and identify Sarichef. Over and above the fact of this present meeting, it was justifiable fear. The North has but a comparatively small white population, and they all cross trails sooner or later, particularly in this great barren end of Alaska that was such a refuge for missing men. He likely knew that Sarichef was located somewhere in this immediate vicinity—probably on the other side of the Peninsula—and therefore

DANISH YOUTH IN WEST POINT

Only in America Past Fifteen Months

WEST POINT, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Fifteen months ago Kaj E. Rasmussen arrived in America from Copenhagen, Denmark. He couldn't speak a word of English, and he was completely ignorant of the ways of the new land.

Today he is a cadet at the U. S. Military Academy, and if all goes well, he will be an officer in the army in four years.

When he arrived from Denmark, he knew what he wanted. It was to enter the army. He did just that. Then, for 15 months, he studied hard and gained enough knowledge to pass the rigid entrance examination to the academy.

"It couldn't have happened in any other country," says Rasmussen.

An inkling of what was to come was shown when Rasmussen was taken after his enlistment. Within a short time he became a corporal.

A commendable part of his army experience was passed with the 10th regiment in Hawaii. He studied diligently while there.

Kaj isn't the only proud member of the family. Just the other day a certain mother and father received this cablegram in their Copenhagen home:

"Future address in West Point, U. S. A.—Kaj."

CAPTURES BIGGEST STILL ELECTION DAY

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 2.—While election judges counted returns, showing he had a big majority over his opponent, Sheriff Dr. Huxford with Ranger Captain Shumate raided a bootlegger's joint, capturing one of the largest stills ever seized in Texas.

The still was housed in a two-story building on a lonely spot west of the city, and was one of the most carefully equipped ever seen here. Huge copper coils, copper kettles, and a heating apparatus equipped to burn carbide gas were used. Oriental incense was burning in the fireplace to hide the smell of liquor.

Now Is the Time for All Good Children—To Tell Dads and Mothers Where to Get Off

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Le Baron Willy Sebastian Knobloch Droste of Hamburg, Germany, has reached our shores determined to organize the International Association Against the Tyranny of Parents.

The tyrannical politics of parents must stop, says he. Parents must be put in their places, and not allowed to dictate to their rising offspring any more.

It seems "they ain't" no justice for mere children any more. They can't do this and they can't do that, without arousing parental wrath. And can't children take care of themselves? Can't they choose their own professions? Can't they decide what is best for their interests without the interference of parents? Can't they indeed? The Baron laughs.

These terrible conditions for children exist everywhere, says the Baron. They are especially noticeable among the rich.

And, points out the Baron, think what a hardship this works on rich children! All they can do is ride around in autos. All they can do is learn to order around a lot of servants. All they can do is grow up in the lap of luxury. Isn't that terrible?

The Baron came over here to end this tyranny. He rented an exclusive and luxurious apartment on ultra-ultra Park Avenue, and this he makes his headquarters.

The Baron greeted us cordially, took off his horn-rimmed spectacles, donned a monocle and unlimbered his voice.

"Conditions are very bad in nobility," he said, "the children of nobility do not get a chance to exercise their talent. Look at myself. We had—let me see—yet, it was 35 servants. I have my castle. But I am not allowed to know how to make money. I could not earn enough until I started dancing to buy what you call them—yep, shoes lace!

"The fathers and mothers they disapprove of children of nobility making money. Of course we can marry rich girls. But we don't like to do that. I myself know I could marry any one of a dozen rich American girls—but all they want is my title, and that does not satisfy me.

"Why, 20 per cent of the suicides among wealthy youths, is because their parents will not allow them to make for themselves a career.

"My position in Germany very hard one. If I want to keep my estates and my castle I must marry a girl of my class, who has 32 ancestors each one with what-you-call-it, oh yes, blue blood! If I want to marry girl of the people, I lose my estate, but I do not lose my title.

"In America among the wealthy it is almost so bad. Parents sometimes do not object if children want to make career. But in Europe—Poo! Even here when a girl wants to go on the stage she is a social outcast.

The Baron's mother, Princess St. Simon, is coming over to this country to save her boy. His papa also is coming. He's going to try to save Willy, too—save him from the terrible fate of making money.

The Baron is liberally surrounded with members of the nobility—starting way back. He keeps handy at all times as a sort of inspiration, a mummified head of an Egyptian prince, whose name he have forgotten. And while the Baron can trace his ancestors back to the 12th Century, he doesn't doubt in the least that the family tree goes back much farther. Who knows but that the mummy itself isn't a relative, though a rather distant one?

With Presidential Candidates Today

By United Press

The president spent the early part of the day again working on his acceptance speech. A trip down the Potomac on the afternoon with Charles B. Warren, Ambassador to Mexico, was under consideration.

Senator La Follette continued in seclusion at his capital office, seeing no visitors except his political lieutenants. He was said to be busy writing.

John W. Da... The democratic nominee will spend two hours at headquarters in New York reading proofs on his speech of acceptance. He has made no appointments and expects to return to his home early in the afternoon.

FAKES JAIL FIGHT, PRISONER ESCAPES
DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 2.—Faking a fight in the county jail here, and feigning unconsciousness, a prisoner charged with theft made a sensational escape.

First he indulged in a fake fight with another prisoner. Suddenly he fell to the floor seemingly unconscious. Jailors after doing what they could, had him taken to a hospital.

No sooner was the "unconscious" man left alone in a room at the hospital, than he leaped out of the window, wearing only his nightclothes, jumped into a passing automobile, and made good his escape.

TOURISTS SHUN GERMAN TRIPS

Profiteer Prices Bring Inevitable Reaction

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Germany is experiencing the worst tourist season since the war. Shipping men and hoteliers are shedding bitter tears of disappointment that American and other guests are repelling away from this country this summer, while England and France are reported reaping a green-back harvest.

Propaganda and advertising abroad are having no effect. More powerful than the pleas of the German hotel men is the alleged French and English propaganda against the German resorts, still more powerful is the fact that German prices are way beyond French and English, while the attractions Germany offers the visitor are not especially alluring.

Hotel prices that compare favorably—or unfavorably—with New York's, theatre prices ranging around $5 per seat; and often more; taxes on hotel guests; recollection of unfavorable treatment of visitors the past two years—these are factors operating to the disadvantage of the German tourist business.

Ill-treatment and gouging, so prevalent during the inflation period, have mostly disappeared. Every effort is now made to make the visitor's stay in Germany pleasant, for hotelmen and storekeepers have come to a belated realization that impolitely does not lure, and that gouging is something a tourist resents, be it little or great.

The hotel proprietors' association is continuing its fight for abolition of hotel taxes. In Berlin, the city council has seen their point of view to the extent of lowering the tax to 15 per cent, but so far steadfastly refuses to budge to the argument that a total abolition would be a drawing card, more profitable to business than the tax receipts.

Lawrence Boys Fight Off Police
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 2.—Two teen-agers believed to be A. J. and Will Lawrence, wanted on charges of the murder for the slaying of Joe Morgan, a deputy sheriff, near Fort Worth, Texas, June 18, escaped after a pistol fight with police officers in a crowded downtown street.

AMERICAN BOY SCOUTS ENJOYING GREAT TRIP

ABOARD S. S. LEVIATHAN, ENROUTE TO CHERPOURG, Aug. 2.—The American Boy Scouts, who are en route to Copenhagen for the international jamboree there, are having a great trip on the Leviathan and are proving the life of the voyage.

Sea Scout Vollman, A. I. Scout Collins have walked 100 miles aboard the ship and did 27 miles in one day for silver and bronze medals offered by Dr. Finley.

The Scout swimming team is practicing daily in the big tanks and amplying program with singing by the merrily rowing boys, who sing every night. All the boys are in good health.

HUNTER GIVES STATE $25 FOR VIOLATION

HARTISBURG, Pa., Aug. 2.—Seth E. Gordon, secretary of the state game commission, received a conscience fund contribution of $25 from a repentant hunter who killed a rarer pheasant out of season. The letter which bore an Altoona postmark, read:

"Indoors I find $25 for a rumpheasant I cooked that was shot out of season in 1924. The Lord has laid it on my heart to make it right. I prefer to withhold my name."

SOCKLESS MEN SET FAD AT DEAUVILLE
PARIS, Aug. 2.—After the stockless woman, enters the stockless man. The newest fad of going without socks has been started at Deauville by Pierre Desmoulens, famous revolutionary.

The example was quickly followed by a number of other visitors and the sight of sockless men in evening dress in the baccarat rooms of the casino at Deauville is common.

ARMY WORMS HIT WISCONSIN CROPS

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 2.—Army worms are making advances into many parts of the state and are an increasing menace, according to reports received by H. F. Wilson of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. Where the worms have already appeared in the fields Wilson urges the use of poison bait as a control measure. About eight or ten pounds wet weight of poisoned bran should be applied to the acre.

FAIR IS ANNOUNCED AT RICHLAND SPRINGS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 2.—The first of three fairs to be held in Richland Springs, August 7 and 8. This is a big free fair, and the 1924 event to the third annual fair for Richland Springs.

The poultry exhibit will be an outstanding feature, and will constitute the largest and best shows of poultry ever assembled in this part of the state.

F. M. Kasemier will be in charge of the poultry judging.

OPENING OF SUBWAY ENGINEERING FEAT

BOMBAY, Aug. 2.—Engineers engaged in remodeling the Poon railway station performed a great engineering feat when they changed the main line going under the Wellesley bridge so that it now goes over the new Wellesley subway.

The change was made in less than five hours and although it meant the removal of 3,000 cubic feet of earth and the laying of 35 feet of new track, not a train was delayed.

Poison: Oak or Ivy is relieved quickly and permanently with Imperial Eucema Remedy. All druggists are authorized to refund your money if it fails.—Adv.

NOVELIST AND BRIDE MARRY SECOND TIME
SALINAS, Cal., Aug. 2.—Governor Morris, the author, and Miss Ruth Whitman, his secretary, were married for the second time.

Morris and Miss Whitman were married first eleven months ago at Ensenada, Mexico, shortly after Morris obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce from Mrs. Elizabeth Morris.

The wedding today was to legalize the union under California law, which prohibits divorced persons marrying again in this state until the final decree of divorce has been issued. Morris received this decree on Saturday in Los Angeles.

TWENTY-YEAR-OLD WEDDING ANNULLED
PARIS, Aug. 2.—An international romance of 20 years ago was recalled when the Seine tribunal annulled the marriage of Count Jacques de la Main to the former Carmelite, Monique, in 1904, by a Belgian missionary. The tribunal's decision made public today agreed with the court's contention that the missionary was incompetent to marry.

KEYS GIVE FREEDOM TO LONE PRISONER
HASTINGS, Neb., Aug. 2.—With keys believed to have been furnished by an accomplice, Ivan Jaskolski, 30 years old, of Grand Rapids, awaiting his second trial on a statutory charge escaped from jail. He was the only prisoner in the jail.

The door was found unlocked the next morning. Two other men accused by the girl were convicted and sent to prison. Jaskolski pleaded not guilty. A jury which heard his first trial disagreed.

SNOW WATER GIVES CHILDREN GOITRE
WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 2.—Examination of 600 school children here resulted in the pronouncement that prevalence of goiter among them was caused by snow water in Shoal Lake, a body of 50 square miles in area, situated 40 miles to the northeast, from which the municipal supply is drawn.

Mr. Duncan McRae said iodine would have to be introduced into the water. Three hundred children between the ages of 12 and 14 were found to have goiter.

FEEDS STRAY KITTEN TO FEEL AT EASE
LONDON, Aug. 2.—The compassion of two women is bestowed upon a black cat, which they feed each day outside the churchyard of St. Anne in Wardour street, Coho.

"Life has been so sad for us that we are full of compassion for dumb animals," they said, as the cat was being fed. "We come from Victoria for the purpose and for two and a half years we have fed this cat, in rain and in cold and bitter weather."

NO WORD RECEIVED FROM BRITISH FLIER
TOKIO, Aug. 2.—A bureau of aeronautics has had no word of Major A. Stuart McLaren, British world flier since he was reported to have arrived at Petropavovsk a week ago Thursday. It is presumed he is being detained by bad weather.

FROM THE DRAMATIC PAGE OF "THE MORNING ARGUMENT"

Last night at the Iroquois Hotel before a brilliant assemblage of guests, Mr. Richard Summers and Miss Beatrice Grisham were married.

Rarely have there been as many flowers at a social function as at this wedding, the whole wall behind the improvised altar being hung with a canopy of La France roses, the bride's favorite flower. This was done at the request of Miss Paula Perier, the brilliant young morning picture star, who has many friends in the city. Miss Perier, on the arm of Mr. John Alden Prescott, made one of the party following the bride. The best man and matron of honor were Mr. Sydney Carton and Mrs. Sally Atherton.

A congratulatory telegram was received from Mrs. Prescott, whose father shows a slight improvement.

The bride was very charming in the maid-of-honor costume that she had worn three years before at Mrs. Prescott's wedding. Mrs. Sally Atherton, a recent widow, was gowned in orchid chiffon, and Miss Perier was radiant in ceil blue chiffon heavily embroidered in pearl beads.

The corridors of the Iroquois were filled all the evening with a curious crowd, hoping to see the famous moving picture star, but no one of the party made an appearance down stairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Summers will accompany Miss Perier back to New York today, where, after a gay week or two with friends, they will start on their trip across the continent to Hollywood, where Mr. Summers has bought a beautiful home in the foothills.

Telegram From Leslie Prescott to Mrs. Richard Summers

You cannot tell, dear, how sorry I was that we could not carry through our arrangements for your wedding. I know it was very beautiful from the wire which was sent me by Sydney Carton. He says you looked very happy, and that Dick and the beautiful cast of countenance of the cat who has eaten the canary. Dad is a little better and some hopes are held out for his recovery. Sorry I will not see you before you leave for the west. Remember, you have all my love and good wishes for your happiness.

LESLIE.

Telegram From Leslie Prescott to Sydney Carton

Thank you so much for wiring me about Bee's wedding. Otherwise I should have known very little about it. My father is a shade better, but the crisis has not been passed yet. Knowing all that you do you will not expect to see me before you leave for home. Will you wire me if the baby is all right. Did Paula Perier see him when she was there?

Have written both to you and to my friend, Sally Atherton. Have not heard from Ruth and did not see her name among the guests, so expect she has gone to New York to meet Walter Burke. That was the reason I could not get hold of her when I left. Will you please send me her New York address if possible? You can get it at the shoe. Thanking you, Always,

LESLIE.

CANADA WOULD BAN ILLICIT CIGARETTES
OTTAWA, Aug. 2.—Half a billion cigarettes are smuggled into Canada from the United States annually, according to Senator Gilden Robertson, former dominion labor minister, who, in the upper house of parliament, is strongly advocating revision of the excise duty. Under present taxation, he declared, the Canadian tobacco business has been curtailed 20 per cent. There has been a loss of revenue of over $1,000,000 and a commercial decrease of over $5,000,000. On a package of 10 cigarettes, retailing at 15 cents, he pointed out, the manufacturer gets 3.33 cents, the wholesaler and retailer 3.71 cents, and the dominion government 7.96 cents.

FREEDOM CAME HIGH FOR THAW

Thousands Expended for Asylum Release

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Thousands of dollars were spent to obtain Harry K. Thaw's release from Kirtland's asylum, here, where he had been confined 7 years, it was revealed when the trustees of the millionaire's estate, Walter Hiddle, of Pittsburgh, and Howard Kirtland, Philadelphia, presented a final accounting of their stewardship to the common pleas court here and asked to be discharged from further duties in the estate.

The account of the committee showed that Thaw received incomes yearly of nearly $400,000 from two trust estates and that they had charge of securities belonging to Thaw which amounted to about $700,000. In the near future, when the provisions of the trust have been carried out, Thaw will get a million dollars more, it was said.

While the report did not disclose the amount of fees paid to lawyers in the litigation, the committee stated that a sum of about $15,000 had not been turned over to Thaw with the rest of the estate, this amount being held to pay bills of various attorneys and medical experts testifying before the Thaw jury hearing here and legal expense which may yet have to be met.

Alliots will get between $1500 and $2000 each for their report to the committee and their examination of Thaw. Dr. Hill, the chief medical expert, called on behalf of Thaw, will receive more than $2500, it was said.

Fees paid other medical experts testifying in favor of Thaw's release from the Pennsylvania hospital for mental and nervous diseases were not revealed.

In addition to the heavy fees paid attorneys and physicians, his brilliant staff of lawyers, and many other incidents, Thaw, through his estate and his great mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw of Pittsburgh, paid about $35,000 for settlement of the Thaw case before he began his fight for liberty.

SMOKE MAKES GERMS FEEBLE

German Savant Offers a Unique Claim

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Smoking has some prophylactic effects, says Dr. George Wolff, well-known Frankfurt physician, in the "Umschau," a health journal.

"Tobacco smoke hinders the growth and expansion of germs though it does not destroy them," Dr. Wolff asserted.

During his experiments, Dr. Wolff exposed various germs to tobacco smoke and put them together with "tobacco" germs in an oven generating a heat of 37 degrees centigrade. The result was, he claims, that the unsmoked germs grew more rapidly than the others.

In a second test, aiming at investigating the destroying potentialities of the smoke, he exposed the germs for a long time to it. The results were negative. He succeeded in killing off only the germs of the "flu," while other less "tender" bacteria lived on, though considerably impeded in growth.

Dr. Wolff believes that nicotine, formaldehyde and pyrral, soluble ingredients of smoke, are the destroying and impeding factors.

ALIENIST TELLS

as a powerful slave, a slave who makes the king and maintains the kingdom, the doctor said. He pointed out, however, that the "slave" always took his position as the king when the emergency demanded it. Leopold picked up where Leob left off, the doctor said, pointing to the Frank case. In this case, after the body was discovered, Leob wanted to drop out, but Leopold insisted on the last telephone call and the last step to bring the case to successful consummation.

In summing up the result of his examination of the two boys, Dr. Wolff said he found Dickie Leob was emotionally only four or five years old. Intellectually, the witness testified, the boy stood very high.

Babe Leopold is only five or seven years old emotionally, but even higher than Leob intellectually, the doctor said.

Crows Fight Alienist Claim

Crows attempted to show that the "super-intellectuals" with the emotions of a child of five—the crux of the defense—were mature both mentally and emotionally.

"Would a man with the emotions of five, when brought into a serious predicament, ask that the names of girl friends be not divulged for fear of bringing them embarrassment?" Crows asked.

"Not necessarily," the alienist for the defense replied.

"Would a child of five with normal emotions of its age show consideration for other people's feelings?" Crows asked.

The doctor replied that the question would be difficult to answer as a general proposition.

"Well, doctor, can you explain to me why these boys were able to live apparently normal lives, attending universities and social functions? How could they do these things in between their periods of phantasy life?"

"Unfortunately that is a common thing rather than the uncommon. Boys like Dickie and Babe, by their very childhood emotions, inspire the love of others and win confidence easily everywhere they go. The alienists, Babe and Dickie—indicate this."

Dr. Richard Leob, Aug. 2, 1936.

Only Three Were There

There were 34 chairs around when the Last Man's Club, composed of survivors of old Company B, First Minnesota Volunteers, gathered for its annual reunion in Stillwater, Minn. But 31 were vacant and 30 of them were draped in black. Only four of the original 34 members of 1890 still live. And one, Emil Graft, St. Cloud, Fla., was confined to his wheelchair and couldn't come. The three who made the trip were Peter Mull, Atwater, Minn. (left); John Goff, St. Paul (center), and Charles Lockwood, Chamberlain, S. D. The old bottle of wine, saved through the years, will be finished when only two remain and the club disbanded. Next September the American Legion, at its national convention in St. Paul, will entertain the surviving members.

750,000 Vets Send Bonus Applications

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Approximately 750,000 veterans have sent in their applications for the soldier bonus to date, it was revealed at the war department today.

The certified requests of ex-service men are being carefully checked at the war department preparatory to the issuing of computations on which the amount of bonus to be paid.

More than 3,000 applications have been approved, compensation credit computed and made ready to be turned over to the veterans' bureau. By next week the first disbursement of certificates, numbering 10,000 will be sent to the bureau.

Adjutant General Robert C. Davis of the war department estimated today that before the middle of next week 3,000,000 veterans will have applied for their adjusted compensation.

ROYAL PAINTER BROKE LONDON, Aug. 2.—The gradual disappearance of European monarchies has thrown Philip A. de Laszlo, famous painter of royal families, out of a job. The establishment of republican rule in Russia, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Greece, Turkey and Portugal has meant to him the loss of his most distinguished clients.

NOTHING WRONG? HERE MANCHESTER, England, Aug. 2.—When Officer Callahan saw an automobile six feet into a ditch recently and mowing the sidewalk he arrested Ralph Coucher, the driver, for intoxication. "Why, he can't be drunk," said Mrs. Coucher. "We are just coming back from a temperance dance."

CHEAPER CHOCOLATES AUCLAND, New Zealand, Aug. 2.—Sweet chocolate is being sold in great quantities at a nominal price by order of Auckland health authorities, who are enthusiastic over the health-giving qualities of the candy. New Zealand manufacturers are ousting English candy and capturing the whole market.

HENRI LETELLIER NOT SURPRISED AT PEGGY PARIS, Aug. 2.—"I am not astonished," said Henri Letellier, a former fiance, when apprised of Peggy Joyce's recent marriage. "But saddest man, allowed romantically: 'But Peggy, she can't—what you say?—get away with it.'"

FORMER CANADIAN OFFICIAL ARRESTED SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 2.—Charles A. Matthews, Jr., former deputy provincial treasurer of Ontario, Canada, is under arrest here as a fugitive from justice. It was announced today by United States immigration authorities.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"What are you going to buy today, Flop?"

"Sh!" said Nick to Nancy. "Don't make any noise."

The Twins were standing very still under a burdock leaf near the place where Flop Field Mouse lived. Having their magic shoes on they were so little you would have had to look twice to see them yourself.

By and by the front door opened and out came Flop all dressed up in a nice starched shirt and red necktie.

"Now do keep yourself clean, Flop," said his mother. "Every day I start you off to Happy Go Lucky Park clean from the skin out, and you come home looking as though you had been dizzing in a coal mine."

Flop looked kind of queer when she said that, but all he said was, "All right, Mammy, I'll be careful."

And away he went jingling his 10 pennies in his pocket and whistling. But catching sight of old Mister Owl looking out of his window, he quit and hurried away into the "cave."

The Twins went after him, still going as quietly as they knew how, and they saw Flop stop under the hazel bush where Mister Mole lived and knock on his door.

"Hello, Flop," said Mister Mole, coming out and closing the door behind him. "I'm ready."

Away went the two chums arm in arm through the woods toward Happy Go Lucky Park.

Nancy and Nick were behind them. They were not eavesdropping, but they couldn't help hearing what the friends said, for they were talking right out loud.

"What are you going to buy today, Flop?" asked Mister Mole.

"I think I'll get a pink lemonade and ride on the merry-go-round," said Flop. "Maybe I'll get the brass ring and get a free ride."

"That's what I'm going to do," said Mister Mole.

"Copy cat!" cried Flop. "You don't need to do everything I do. Besides if I get the brass ring maybe I'll keep it for a keepsake and then you can't get it and have a free ride."

"All right," said Mister Mole. "All right, Mister Smurly Longtail. 'Do as you like. But if I don't dig a tunnel for you to crawl through and get into the park for nothing, you'll have to pay your way at the gate and you won't have any money left for either lemonades or merry-go-rounds. So now."

"Oh, I can go through one of our old tunnels," said Flop slyly.

"No you can't," said Mister Mole. "The ground's soft and they've all caved in. Besides we always fill them up partly so Mister Zip doesn't see them."

"I was only fooling, anyway," said Flop. "I didn't mean it. Come on. Here's a good place to dig. Right outside the fence."

And almost before you could say boo the little mole boy began to scratch and dig with his little shovel jaws, and disappeared, hide, hair and all, right down into the ground. It didn't take Flop Field Mouse long to follow. The last the Twins saw of him was his long tail. Finally they disappeared, too.

When Flop and Mister Mole poked their noses out into daylight again under the roller coaster in the park, there stood Mister Zip waiting for them.

"Ten cents each, please," he grumbled, holding out his hand.

Flop and Mister Mole looked sheepish, but they paid it without a word. All their quarrel for nothing mind you!

Most quarrels are.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

HOW HAWKS FOUGHT WITH HERONS

Hawks or "falcons" had to be trained before they could be used for hunting. That was not an easy matter. You can be sure the young hawk wanted to eat what it caught all by itself, without giving any part to the master.

While being trained, the hawk often had a string tied to its leg. Before it could fly away with its prey, the master would pull it back. Thus it got in the habit of coming back, and it would do so even after it was freed of the string.

Sometimes the young hawk was set to chase a pair of wings. The wings looked like a bird.

In at least one case, a hawk owner got in trouble with a hunter. He was whirling a pair of wings in the air. The hunter thought he saw a bird and began to chase it. When he found he had been fooled, he grew angry and came near to striking the hawk owner with a hunting horn.

Hawks were often set to chase herons. The heron is a bird with long legs and a very sharp beak. It likes to wade in water, but when it gets to flying it can go mighty high. Hawks were sent out to catch herons flying far above the earth. The heron knew its enemy and did its best to get away. If it saw the hawk above it, it would get ready for a fight. One old picture shows a heron flying underneath two hawks. The heron has its sharp beak upraised, and is ready to strike the first chance it gets.

Fights between hawks and herons were watched with great interest. Often there was a throng of people from a castle, shouting and cheering as they gazed up. When the hawk swooped down to tackle the heron, there was a drum of trumpets and a beating of bells.

Sometimes the fighting birds would fall to the earth, both wounded but fastened tight to each other. Then the master of the hawk would strike the heron with a stick, he would strike the heron with a stick.

It was a custom to give the hawk part of its game as a reward. (Copyright 1924, by John F. Dille Co., Chicago.)
